On Wednesday, May 2nd, the Newark Police Department arrested 31 year old Demetrius Sharp of Kennett Square, PA following an investigation which was initiated on February 21st, 2012. The investigation began when a 21 year old female University of Delaware student reported that she was being harassed by Sharp who is employed as a police officer with the University of Delaware Police Department.

The female student, who had ended a relationship with Sharp on February 18th, began receiving harassing text, email and voice messages from Sharp for a three day period beginning on February 19th. In addition, Sharp attempted to contact her in person while on duty as a uniformed police officer including parking outside her home and shining a spot light from his patrol vehicle into the victim's windows.

Sharp, who is on administrative leave with the University Police, turned himself in to Newark Police on May 2nd. He was charged with 3 counts of Harassment and 1 count of Official Misconduct and released on $4,000 unsecured bond.

Additional officers from the Newark Police department and the University of Delaware Police Department will be working this weekend in anticipation of complaints stemming from Cinco de Mayo activities.
