WEEKLY REPORT

We have recently been dealing with a number of violent domestic related incidents. Below are two of the more violent incidents that occurred.

On February 18th, Newark officers responded to a report of a possible carjacking at an intersection in the city. The female victim told officers the father of her child approached her just after dropping off her child at daycare. The female has a no-contact order against the male and was able to leave the scene in her vehicle. She then observed the male following her. When the female stopped for a red light, the male exited his vehicle and physically forced his way into her car. The female was able to flee the vehicle and the male left the area. The male has been charged with numerous crimes against the female in the past including, assault, aggravated menacing, terrorist threats, etc. A warrant was issued for the male and Newark detectives tracked him in Georgia where he was arrested by local police.

On February 21st, Newark officers responded to a report of a woman screaming and then a second report of a woman who was at a neighbor's residence that appeared injured. Officers arrived to find the female with wounds on her face and neck with lacerations near her right eye. The female also had bruises on her arms and neck. Later the investigation revealed that the woman was beaten by her live-in boyfriend. The male was arrested and charged with assault, strangulation, theft, unlawful imprisonment, DUI and driving with a suspended license. We encourage anyone who would like more information relating to domestic violence or available support services to contact the Newark Police Department.

Officers have continued with community policing initiatives. The Special Operations Unit has been working with the residents of Villa Belmont Condominiums, New Castle County Police Department, and other agencies on a group of homeless people in the area. The unit will be meeting with the residents and others on Thursday, February 24th at 7:00 p.m. in the Villa Belmont community room. Special Operations officers also assisted the Parks and Recreation Department with chaperoning 17 children from the Camp R.E.A.L. Camp as they attended a basketball game at the university.

After being made aware of a complaint of skateboarders on Main Street yesterday, Officer Shannon Craig decided to begin a community policing project to deal with the issues. Below is part of the email that Officer Craig sent to her sergeant regarding the project she is working on:

"I met with one of the owners of Switch today regarding a collaboration between Switch and NPD to minimize the skateboard violations occurring on Main Street. He and I both agreed that an educational pamphlet that he could hand out to new customers would be the best route at this point. The pamphlet would educate Switch customers that it is prohibited for them to skateboard on E. Main Street between Library Ave and S. Main Street. Tyler also suggested the pamphlet contain something positive such as the two skate parks located within the City limits that they can go skate in if they choose. Another suggestion he made was to add the camps that may be available at the skate parks throughout the year. I will continue to communicate with Tyler and make a draft of a pamphlet until all parties are satisfied. I also advised Tyler that the City is working on placing better visible signs along E. Main Street so that the public is aware of the prohibition of bicycles and skateboards on the sidewalks. “

Our newest police recruit, Nicholas Esposito, will begin work on Monday at the police department and will begin the police academy in mid-March.
